Course description

Description of the course

This course prepares university lecturers to teach effectively through English, focusing on clear communication, student engagement, and inclusive practices beyond language proficiency. Through seven interactive sessions, participants address key aspects of English as a Medium of Instruction, from lecture design and classroom interaction to assessment adaptation. The programme combines reflective teaching with practical micro-teaching activities to support confident practice and ongoing professional development.

Learning objectives / expected outcomes

1. Develop effective university teaching practices through English, beyond language proficiency.
2. Design clear, structured, and interactive EMI lectures.
3. Promote student engagement, critical thinking, and inclusive learning environments.
4. Reflect on teaching practice and support professional development through micro-teaching.
